

BITTERROOT EPK 2019

Bitterroot is a Boulder-based trio comprised of Caroline Quine (The Keenas, The Clarks), bassist Matt Cantor (Gasoline Lollipops, Gypsy Moon, The Jeremy Mohny band), and former Cleveland-area guitarist Kevin Johnson (Mo' Mojo, Hillbilly Idol, Brent Kirby). All three members have performed extensively in the Boulder area and beyond. Their Americana/folk sound draws on various roots influences – country, bluegrass, folk, blues – and features original compositions, engaging vocals, and soulful instrumentation.

BIOS

Caroline Quine (vocals, acoustic guitar, songwriter)

Born and raised in Akron, Ohio, Caroline comes from a musical family. Her cousin was the late Robert Quine (Richard Hell, Lou Reed, Matthew Sweet), and Dan Quine Auerbach of The Black Keys is her nephew. After raising a family, Caroline re-ignited her musical aspirations with The Clarks (of Boulder) and The Keenas, who regularly performed in the Boulder area and throughout Colorado. Vocals are her strong suit, showcased by her melodic, narrative songwriting style.

Matt Cantor (bass)

Matt lends his considerable skill on acoustic bass and musical arrangements to Bitterroot. His style influences range from jazz to gypsy jazz to swing. A founding member of Gypsy Moon, Matt also performs swing with The Jeremy Mohny band and gigs regularly with other local acts.

Kevin Johnson (guitar)

Kevin is a musician's musician and arranger, having developed and honed his chops playing all styles of music with cruise ship bands and orchestras. He has travelled the world with Cleveland-area zydeco band Mo' Mojo, and was the bassist for Brent Kirby and Hillbilly Idol. He performs regularly in the Boulder / Denver area with various jazz, swing, bluegrass, pop, and rock bands.
